

The Budget Princess

By: Laura Vazquez, Karina Luna,
Amanda Dung, Ashley Vanderhoof,
and Mariana Pedroza

Once upon a time there was a princess who lived in an amazing kingdom in the magical land of California.

She loved ball gowns and always wanted a new one to add to her collection. However, every time she would buy a new gown, someone in the kingdom would lose something.

At first, this was no problem. She could buy a couple simple gowns and the rude and greedy people in the kingdom would lose something.

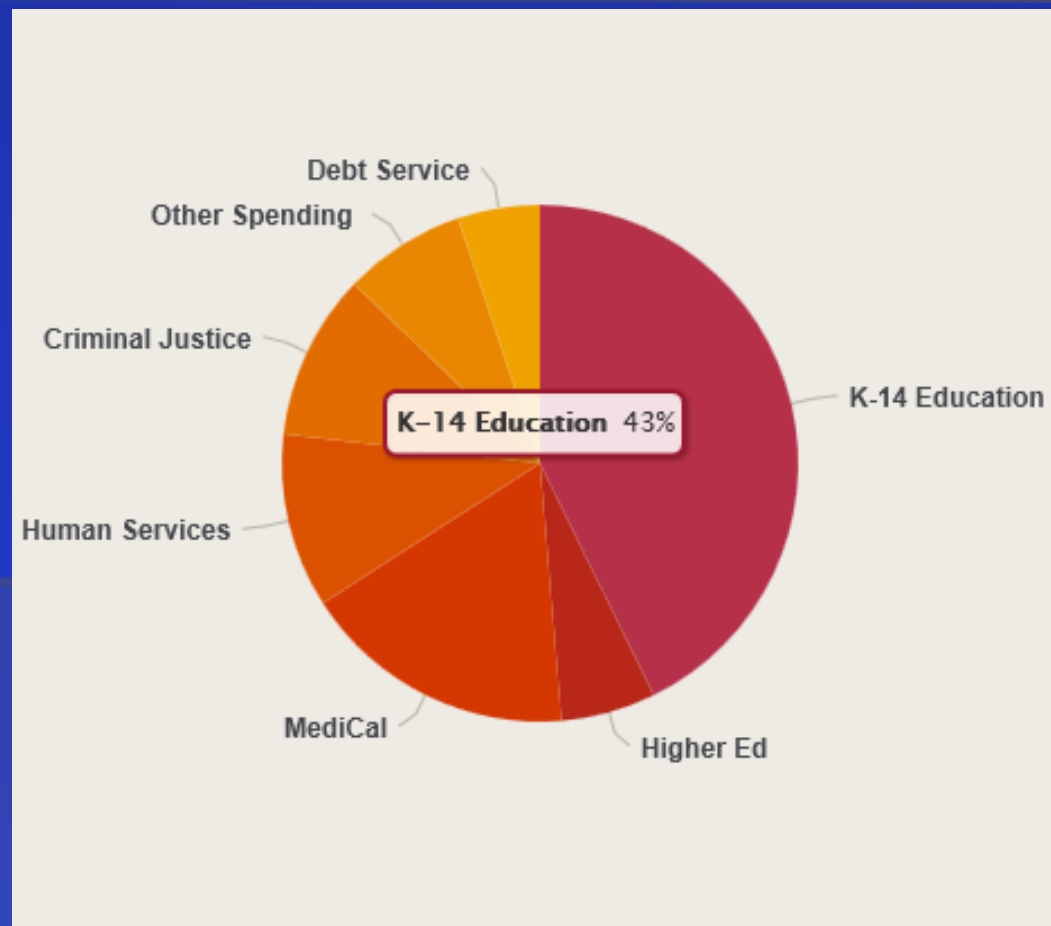

Yet, the princess really wanted a golden ball gown. As this dress was more extravagant, this would cause some of the poorer and good people in the kingdom to lose something as well.

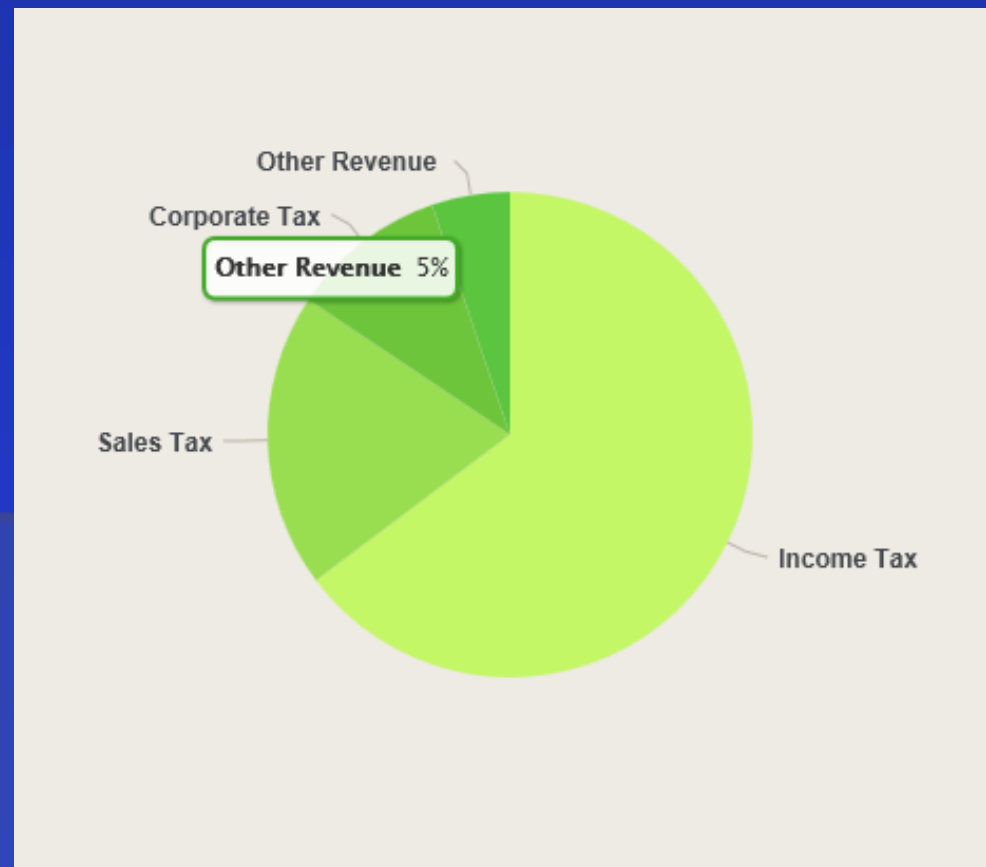

The princess was a very generous person and didn't want the poor and good people to suffer, however she really wanted that gown. She still has not found a solution of what to do.

Analysis: Our Spending

Analysis: Our Revenue

CREATIVE STORY/PRESENTATION

Once upon a time there was a princess who lived in an amazing kingdom in the magical land of California.

She loved ball gowns and always wanted a new one to add to her collection. However, every time she would buy a new gown, someone in the kingdom would lose something.

At first, this was no problem. She could buy a couple simple gowns and the rude and greedy people in the kingdom would lose something.

Yet, the princess really wanted a golden ball gown. As this dress was more extravagant, this would cause some of the poorer and good people in the kingdom to lose something as well.

The princess was a very generous person and didn't want the poor and good people to suffer, however she really wanted that gown. She still has not found a solution of what to do.

Analysis:

The princess represents our group, the ball gowns symbolize our spending, and the people in the kingdom that lose their belongings represent the taxes.

Like the princess who wanted the ball gowns, we wanted to increase spending to improve the state. However, just like in the story, there was a consequence for every time we increased our spending. This consequence was raising taxes so that we could try to balance the budget.

At first, we realized some of the taxes we raised could have positive effects, like raising taxes on cigarettes increased the health of more people. Just as in the story, it was a good thing that the greedy people would lose something.

However, the category we wanted to spend the most on was education and this would be a lot of money. In order to try to lower the deficit, we would have to raise taxes that may also hurt some of the poorer people in our state. Similar to the princess in the story who wanted the golden ball gown, yet some of the poorer citizens in the kingdom would lose something as well.

We ended up deciding to raise some more taxes, however, we did not want to overly tax our state, and therefore we were able to lower the deficit, but not balance the budget.